

France Dare Not Destroy Effectiveness of Army At This Time, Briand Warns

PREMIER RECOUNTS, ONE BY ONE, PERILS BESETTING PEOPLE

Germany Maintains in State of Instant Preparedness 250,000 Men, He Tells Conference

China Wins Point

Far East Body Votes to Grant Her Administrative Integrity and "Open Door"

(By The Associated Press.)

Washington, Nov. 21.—In her emotional plea for national security, pronounced by Aristide Briand, her premier, France informed the arms conference today that however deeply she might be moved by the call to lighten the burden of armaments, she did not dare destroy the effectiveness of her army so long as the situation in Europe remains what it is.

Summoning to the effort all the dynamic force of his eloquence, the "strong man of France" held the rapt attention of the conference for an hour as he recounted, one by one, the perils that beset his people. Briefly, he declared the old imperialistic party of Germany still was covertly teaching the religion of war and hoping to turn to its advantage at the very door of France seven millions of men trained in the use of arms, while beyond lay Bolshevik Russia, with her millions stirring in an unrest whose final course no one could predict.

By one means or another, said M. Briand, Germany has brought under arms and was maintaining in a state of instant preparedness at least 250,000 men. War material he declared, would not long furnish a serious problem for the German nation should it again decide to make war. The present German government he credited with the most pacific of intentions but the weakness of its tenure, he asserted, was apparent to anyone who had watched close at hand the developments of the last few months.

France Virtually Pledged Support

When the French premier had concluded, Arthur J. Balfour, responding to a French demand for the evacuation of Europe be again threatened as it was in 1914. For the United States, Secretary Hughes declared the plea of France never fell on deaf ears in America and Italy and Belgium added their word of appreciation for the French situation of the French.

Admiral Baron Kato, speaking in his own name, expressed the profound sympathy of Japan for the declaration of Premier Briand and asserted that for themselves the Japanese desired to maintain on land only such military forces as seemed necessary for national security and the maintenance of peace within.

Both Mr. Balfour and Baron Kato suggested that the day's developments were a landmark in the history of peace. "I am sure," said Mr. Balfour, "that the day's developments were a landmark in the history of peace. I am sure that the day's developments were a landmark in the history of peace."

Germany Not Dangerous? Reverting to the possibilities that the war parties of the Central empires might come back to power, M. Briand declared recently was an attempted restoration in Europe which

Great Man? Look at His Coat!

Arthur J. Balfour, head of the British delegation, greeted by Secretary Hughes on his arrival in Washington. As a man, to be careless of his clothes, must be either very poor or very great, the British statesman, who is certainly not poor, must be a very great man, indeed. Look at the old coat with pocket pulled away, fitting badly and carelessly buttoned.

might have set the whole continent on fire. "Fortunately for the Entente," he added, "it was averted."

Coming to physical aspects, Premier Briand said it was well understood that some persons took the viewpoint that as Germany was just emerging from the war she was in no position to be dangerous. "Our soldiers had a place in the fight," said M. Briand, "and they know to what point the German soldier can carry his heroism. Germany still has 7,000,000 men who have made war. You ask is it possible to mobilize an army there tomorrow? I answer yes."

"What is the German army?" he asked. "Is it in conformity with the peace treaty? No certainly, no. According to secret instructions issued by some of the German military authorities there men are only prepared for police service but for war it is needed. The German government itself has done its duty and is ready to recognize it. The German chancellor is loyal and has applied every real evidence, that he wishes the state of peace and honors the signature of Germany, but the German government is weak." The present German government, Premier Briand continued, "ought fall at any moment."

There was still another German organization, he said, comprising 150,000 former enlisted men with non-commissioned officers ready to undertake military service.

"We demand dissolution of this force," he said. "Instead of this being a local police force it has become a general police force for use anywhere in Germany. It now comprises about 250,000 men."

"Through the various organizations of former army men," Premier Briand said, "Germany had grouped together as much as possible for military service in a military and mercenary way. Former combat units' associations were formed in Germany," he continued, "and marshaled on occasional military anniversaries."

"In Upper Silesia in a few weeks," he continued, "almost in a few days, there were about 10,000 men armed with machine guns and rifles. These are facts gentlemen. I am not inventing as they are bringing them here to make me case better. In a few weeks or perhaps in a few days Germany would begin to raise 6,000,000 or 7,000,000 men."

The premier then put the case up to America.

France Does Not Exaggerate. "Suppose that by your side," he said, "there was a nation that for years had been in bloody conflict with you. Suppose this nation should feel that she was ready to resume the struggle when she had the material? Would you close your eyes and turn away? Would you not desire to do everything in your power to safeguard your life, your honor? Would you not desire to weaken yourself? No."

"France does not exaggerate," the speaker continued. "She is only watching and waiting."

Premier Briand said the question of new material was a problem that could easily be solved. "You have seen," he said, "how quickly enormous armies have come over to us and fought by our sides. What is Germany but a vast country of industry? Everything is ready in Germany, the plans, the designs, the capital, everything to insure manufacture of machine guns, rifles and artillery. Suppose during a period of diplomatic tension some manufacturing bureau began to go on manufacturing guns, rifles and artillery. Great quantities of industry have bought concerns in Scandinavia and other parts of Europe. It is easy enough to fabricate guns when you have the material. It would be difficult to lay down a capital ship without the world knowing it, but the guns, the rifles, they can be manufactured and armed by the controlled with any measure of secrecy."

The French premier pointed out that Prussia had been disarmed by Napoleon and added:

"But she found her place on the battlefield. How could we forget that?"

Declaring France must protect her-agreed upon today by all the nations represented in the arms conference.

The first definite agreement to come out of the conference, the declaration touches in general terms most of the principles for which China asked in her "bill of rights," but does not provide in detail for the settlement of the specific problems with which she is confronted.

Elthru Root proposed the declaration resolution and two hours of debate preceded its adoption. During the discussion, both Japan and China as the most interested nations, asked many questions as to possible application of the suggested principle to specific problems, while the other nations took a less active part in the debate.

"Perfect satisfaction" with the resolution was expressed tonight by Admiral Baron Kato, head of the Japanese delegation, although he declined to suggest what charges the agreement might lead to in the Far East. The Chinese also declared themselves gratified at the development and the delegates of other nations generally voiced the view that the agreement was a good start toward a complete agreement on the most important of the Far Eastern problems.

The two features of the declaration attracting widest attention tonight were the clause approving "administrative integrity" for China and that under which the powers agreed not to seek "special rights" within Chinese territory. Previous declarations of policy regarding Chinese "integrity" commonly construed as a much narrower term than "administrative integrity." The "special rights" agreement was considered generally a direct contravention of the policy of "spheres of influence."

PROGRESS ON AGREEMENT ON HUGHES NAVAL CUT PLAN

Washington, Nov. 21.—There was strong indication today that definite progress toward an agreement on the American proposal for naval reduction and limitation was being made, although no definite action was taken. The "Big Three" made the arms limitation, Secretary Hughes, Arthur J. Balfour and Admiral Baron Kato, met in Mr. Hughes' office. Each was aided by the chief naval experts of each power but so far as could be learned the discussion did not get beyond further talk over figures as to tonnage and other matters in the American plan.

The fact that the experts had made such progress as to warrant the informal meeting of the heads of the three delegations chiefly concerned in the naval program was regarded as significant, however, and foreshadowing some early conclusions.

There was evidence that during the conference, the American experts were asked for and explained further particulars as to the American proposals. Mr. Hughes, Mr. Balfour and Baron Kato were compelled to leave for the Far Eastern conference before the experts were ready to separate, but it appeared probable that there would be a further meeting tomorrow when the additional data prepared today would be reviewed.

There is no indication that any change in the American proposal for a "five-five-three ratio" of fleet strength will be considered by the American group.

American naval opinion does not easily accept any suggestion that additional ships to those proposed in Mr. Hughes' plan be retained by any power. This was based on the facts that the United States fleet is the largest in the world for application of a cut and the decade of no building. The Japanese contend, it is understood, that the battleship Matsushima, proposed to be scrapped, was actually so nearly a finished ship on that date that she should be retained. In that event, it seems highly probable the United States would retain one or more of its new battleships now afloat, but which she has offered to scrap. The point has not been threshed out as yet by the experts, however, nor has Japan definitely committed her self. It is said, to the "five-five-three" replacement ratio.

In any case, however, the British have given unqualified endorsement according to the fundamental principle of the American plan, the "five-five-three ratio," and settlement of this vital first point awaits Japan's final answer. American opinion regards other matters as routine to a large extent.

POPE URGES CONFERENCE TO INVOKE AID OF GOD

Rome, Nov. 21.—Pope Benedict, in his allocution delivered at today's consistory, dealt with the subject of disarmament. He expressed his approval of the fundamental principle of the American plan, the "five-five-three ratio," and settlement of this vital first point awaits Japan's final answer. American opinion regards other matters as routine to a large extent.

"In striving for the good and well being of the people through the operation of reason and experience said the allocution, "it would be a mistake to rely alone on the use of means and not invoke the aid of God."

"For this reason we view with pleasure how the representative of several nations have met in Washington with the aim of reaching an agreement for the reduction of armaments and not alone do we warmly hope that their labors may have a happy success, but, unitedly, for the good of all we pray that His majesty will be with them and that they may determine not alone how to lighten the heavy burdens of the people, which is no small thing, but a thing which matters much more—to make as remote as possible forevermore the dangers of new wars."

His Holiness deplored the unrest observed in new states, and ordered: "We note with grief that the solemn treaty of peace has not brought about peace of mind."

ADMINISTRATIVE INTEGRITY VOTED CHINA BY CONFERENCE

Washington, Nov. 21.—A joint declaration of policy toward China based on territorial and administrative integrity, economic opportunity, an enforced "open door" and the abolition of "special rights," was agreed upon today by all the nations represented in the arms conference.

Albany Carmen's Strike Officially "Called Off"

Albany, Nov. 21.—The strike of former employees of the United Traction company which began January 2, was called off tonight by the Troy local of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees. A meeting of the Albany local was held for tonight, also, but because of the small attendance it was postponed until tomorrow night. Earlier in the day, the United Traction company announced that it now has its full quota of employees. In Troy, it was claimed by the company, there is a waiting list.

CORNELL'S DISTANCE RUNNERS VICTORIOUS

Ithaca Squad, Coached by Jack Moakley, Wins Intercollegiate Title With 18 Points

New York, Nov. 21.—Cornell distance runners easily captured individual and team honors this afternoon in the 30th annual varsity cross country championship of the Intercollegiate Athletic association. The Ithaca squad, coached by Jack Moakley, placed six of its seven entrants among the first ten runners to finish the six-mile race laid out in Van Cortlandt park. The Cornell team won with 18 points, Princeton was second with 37, Syracuse third with 108, and Yale fourth with 111. The University of Cincinnati, sole western competitor, finished 13th.

Robert E. Brown of Cornell, the individual winner, set a fast pace over the water-soaked course from the start and was never headed, finishing in 22 minutes, 20.5 seconds. Robert Crawford of Lafayette and Marvin Rick of Princeton pressed him close in the early portions of the race but the Cornell runner had plenty in reserve and the pace eventually wore out his challengers to such an extent that Norman P. Brown and E. C. Carter, both of Cornell, finished second and third.

Rick was fourth, George McKee of Cornell fifth, and Crawford sixth. As Crawford was the only runner to start for Lafayette, his place did not count in the team's score. Homer Smith of Syracuse securing the six points for his team.

The three-mile freshman race was won by the Yale team with 77 points; Pennsylvania second, with 91; Syracuse third, with 93, and Cornell and Lafayette tied for fourth place, with 191. E. O. McNamee of Pennsylvania took individual honors in this race, his time being 16 minutes, 2.6 seconds. S. Kerr, also of Pennsylvania, was second, ten seconds behind the winner, and third place went to S. H. North of Cornell. W. C. Scherff of Princeton was fourth and P. Adams of Yale fifth.

The Cornell victory in the varsity event was the ninth since the inauguration of the contest in 1908. All previous point records were broken by the Ithacans today with the remarkably low score of 18 points. Yale's triumph in the freshman run duplicated the Eli's win of a year ago in the first race ever held for freshmen teams.

Nearly 100 entrants, representing 12 colleges, started in the varsity race. The institutions included Cincinnati, Colby, Columbia, Cornell, Dartmouth, Harvard, Maine, Massachusetts Tech, Penn State, Pennsylvania, Princeton, Syracuse, New York and Yale.

KOSHER STRIKE NEARS END

1,000 Members of the Butchers' Union Make Annual Pilgrimage to Headquarters and "Sign Up" for 1922

New York, Nov. 21.—The annual strike of Kosher butchers, which for ten years has been called each November as an "Americanization" lesson to newcomers in the business from Russia, Poland and other alien lands, was reported nearly over tonight—before it became generally known that a strike was in progress.

Samuel Jacob, secretary of the Butchers' union, said approximately 1,000 butchers walked out yesterday morning, closing nearly all of the 500 Kosher shops in the Jewish sections of the city.

No distinction was made between shops favorable to the union and those not favorable. All remained closed until their proprietors made the annual pilgrimage to union headquarters and signed a 1922 agreement. This contract, which 400 of the 500 shops signed yesterday and today, called for a wage scale ranging from $40 a week to $75 a week, and for a nine-hour day. The other 100 shops are expected to fall in line by tomorrow, Mr. Jacob said.

When all the new shop keepers have passed their examination in "Americanization" by signing and the workers by striking, celebrations will be held in which shop owners, customers and butchers will participate, he added.

HOUSE APPROVES REVISED TAX BILL; UP IN SENATE

Washington, Nov. 21.—By a vote of 232 to 109, the house late today approved the tax revision bill as rewritten in conference. The measure immediately was sent to the senate, where it will be taken up tomorrow with Republican leaders determined upon its final enactment in time for the ending of the special session of congress Wednesday night.

Before adopting the conference report on the bill, the house defeated, 202 to 141, a motion from the Democratic side to send the measure back to conference with instructions to the house managers to accept the senate amendment increasing the inheritance taxes.

FORD-NEWBERRY CASE DROPPED

Senate Probably Will Not Consider Senatorial Contest Again in Several Weeks

DAY OF HOT DEBATE

Senators Williams and Watson Clash When Latter Attacks Henry Ford

Washington, Nov. 21.—The Ford-Newberry senatorial election contest in Michigan was laid aside by the senate tonight, although it was formally before the body again for several weeks, after a day of discussion in which Henry Ford, who is contesting the seating of Senator Truman H. Newberry, was both denounced and defended, and which was enlivened by a heated tilt between Senators Williams of Mississippi and Watson of Georgia, Democrats. The election controversy was side-tracked to make way for the conference report on the revenue bill.

The clash between Senators Williams and Watson developed when the latter attacked Mr. Ford and declared that "left-over Wilsonites" in the senate were seeking to renege Mr. Newberry because he had opposed the League of Nations.

Henry Ford Entertained. Mr. Williams said he regarded Mr. Ford as "so far superior in altruism, in world sense, and in world vision to the senator from Georgia (Mr. Watson) and myself, that I can hardly find words to express it." He was interrupted by Mr. Watson, who declared he had not asked a "clean bill of health" from Mr. Williams, and added:

"I stated that the war department records show that in various trips paid to Henry Ford, he was paid for materials never delivered, one from being for tractors, and the amount was $2,000,000; that he kept his son out of the war when the sons of Senator Newberry were in the war."

Watson's War Stand Attacked. Mr. Watson also charged that Mr. Ford had assessed his employees, "blackmailed" them, he said, for $20,000 for his "expense account." Mr. Williams denied that Mr. Ford had ever done such a thing and added:

"I do not approve Mr. Ford's course during the war, when the senator from Georgia was running with him, when they both were trying to make peace for a common enemy."

"When the senator states that, he states what is not true," shouted Senator Watson.

Mr. Williams inquired which part of his statement was not true, and when informed continued:

"I take back the part of it in which I said he was running with Henry Ford, but I do not take back the part of it in which I said he was running against his country."

Mr. Williams attempted to continue, but Mr. Watson was shouting, "It's false." Other senators were seeking recognition from the chair and Senator Hollis, Democrat of Alabama, who had held the floor when the exchanges began, was vainly trying to make himself heard above the many voices and the pounding of the gavel by the vice president.

Mr. Watson and Mr. Williams, with two desks between them, stood glaring at each other when order was restored. Mr. Williams, without another word, picked up his hat and walked out of the chamber.

FIRE ON GOVERNOR'S STEAMER A MYSTERY

Authorities Seek to Link It With Porto Rican Radical Threats Against Reilly

New York, Nov. 21.—The cause of the fire aboard the steamship Tanamo that tonight Governor E. Mont Reilly here yesterday from Porto Rico, continued a mystery tonight, despite claims of federal agents and attorneys to trace it to a plot of Porto Rican revolutionists against the governor's life. Three arrests which Robert H. Todd, Porto Rican commissioner of immigration, said he had been informed were imminent, had failed to materialize, and Captain Herbert Hudson of the Tanamo said an examination of the members of the crew failed to lead to solving the mystery.

Arriving letters received by Governor Reilly before he sailed, Captain Hudson said, made it appear as "of possible incendiary origin."

The forward holds of the steamer were flooded late this afternoon as a last resort to check the stubborn blaze, which had burned since last Wednesday and which broke out with renewed intensity when firemen removed her hatches today.

Mr. Todd and other members of the governor's party adhered to their conviction that the fire had been set by Porto Rican "independents," members of the Unionist party, to carry out threats to "burn him" in November, because of his stern opposition to their campaign to break out creation of a Porto Rican republic.

SET HARD TASK FOR ARTIST

Chinese Demand Absolutely Perfect Work From Man Entrusted With the Carving of Jade.

The high standing of jade is no modern thing. The primitive weights and measures of the Chinese were computed from jade tubes, and the earliest bars or intervals of music known to that nation were determined by hollow bamboo tubes of accurate length, afterward made in jade tubes having stops within to be pulled out at the will of the player.

The Spaniards and the Mexicans have as great respect for the stone as the Chinese, and they make great use of it. The Chinese value their jade carvings so highly that they cannot often be prevailed upon to part with them.

When an unusually large piece of jade is found in China, there is called a council of artists to determine into what shape it had best be carved, as, owing to its extreme hardness, the form selected must follow somewhat the outline indicated by the natural formation of the specimen.

The artist chosen to perform the delicate task is not altogether to be envied. It is true that if he succeeds he will be highly honored and rewarded, but success depends upon his work being approved after it has been subjected to public criticism for a whole year. If, at the end of that time, his work should be condemned, his reputation as an artist is irretrievably lost.

The task itself is no light one. With a thin piece of finely tempered brass wire, the artist may work for a week without having anything to show. Twenty years have not been considered too long for a single piece of carving.

Trench-Nellis Fortunes

By CLAIRE SMITH.

Copyright, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.

"Your uncle, Mr. Daniel Trench, wishes to do you full justice, Mr. Denslow."

"I hope so. It is my due," observed Vane Denslow.

"Your uncle is glad to help you in a business way," pursued his agent and attorney, Mr. Thacker.

"He has great future plans for you. As soon as you get all your arrangements for going into business made, he wants to have you shoot straight ahead. See? In fact, he has you in his eye as a—what shall I say? A very promising party for his ward, Miss Nellis. You've heard of her? Think of the vast mutual interests if the Trench and Nellis fortunes could be consolidated."

"In other words," broke in Vane suddenly, "my uncle offers a bribe to have me become a puppet in his hands?"

"Not a bit—not at all," the wily lawyer went to declare. "He only hopes to see things in his way."

"I am the master of the selection of a wife," observed Vane. "He had better not try it! Does he know, sir, that I am honorably engaged to a young lady here in Wilby?"

"Just so. Indeed not. Just mentioned it. Ha, ha! Forget it, my dear young friend. Good day."

In brief, the attorney had appeared to make Vane a proposition—to go to Meriden, fifty miles away, and enter into business. His uncle was about to retire, a wealthy man. The elevator he owned controlled a fine trade. He offered to make a gift of it to his nephew.

Vane Denslow was a proud, self-reliant young man, but he saw his way clearly to accept the gift. In his mind and in his uncle's mind and in the minds of all who knew a great deal, but could not legally prove the same, when Vane's father died his brother-in-law had managed by a quirk of the law to get hold of some valuable property by all moral right belonging to the Denslows.

There was no doubt that old Trench's conscience as he got older had urged him to a grudging restitution, the way Vane figured it out.

Leoline, at Wilby, began to receive some letters that nearly broke her heart at the first, and Dale, at Meriden, in turn received news concerning his fiancée that amazed him. Fortunately he ran down to Wilby for an explanation.

"It is all clear to me," he said to Leoline. "Some trouble maker has got the news to you of my 'gay life' at Meriden, and to use of the numerous beaux you are going around with, to separate us. I know who it is, and I know why. Leoline, dear, we must outwit these plotters. Whisper, dear, and the interview wound up in an extension to a near-by city, and then Vane went back to his work.

Vane was introduced to his uncle's ward, Miss Dolly Nellis.

Dolly made sure that her guardian was out of hearing as she sat down on a rustic bench.

"Mr. Denslow," she whispered in a fluttering tone, "are we all, all alone?"

"I think we are, Miss Nellis," replied Vane wonderingly.

"Can I tell you a dreadful, dreadful secret?" she whispered.

"I shall be honored by your confidence," flattered Vane.

"Then—then, oh, dear! I hope it won't break your heart, but I—I am engaged!"

"I must congratulate you."

"Oh, I am so glad!" gushed the fair Dolly.

"I will tell you a secret, too, dear Miss Nellis," said Denslow. "I am already married!"

"I could almost kiss you for delight!" cried Dolly. "I will your wife, when I meet her. Oh, I am so happy!"

When old man Trench learned how his nephew had outwitted him through a secret marriage to Leoline at the time his emissary Thacker was plotting to separate them, he wrote an awful letter to Vane.

In a dignified way the latter informed him that the business he had given him barely made up for what he had robbed his father of. If, however, Trench, Thacker & Co. felt that they had in any way been circumvented, resulting in a loss to their prospects, Vane would set aside the profits of the business he had managed to build up wonderfully, and would restore the original investment to his money-loving relative.

Trench quieted down after this. As to Dolly and Reginald, they eloped under the very nose of the old man, so it was dire retribution for the crafty schemers all around.

How to Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

Has no equal for prompt results. Takes but a moment to prepare, and saves you about $1.

Pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup. To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pine in a pint bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup.

Either way, you make a full pint—more than you can buy ready-made for three times the money. It is pure, good and tastes very pleasant. You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—irritated membranes—and this Pine and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment.

Pine is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs. Beware of substitution with any other drug for "2½ ounces of Pine" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction, or money refunded. The Pine Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

WENT TO RUSSIA "FOR FUN"

But Detroit Student Didn't Find It So Funny and Is Hurrying Back Home.

Warsaw.—Bolshevik soldiers guard the Russian border and only certain persons are given permission to leave the country, yet by bribery and other means great numbers of persons are crossing into adjacent countries each night.

A recent arrival in Warsaw from Russia was Ralph Rimar, formerly an art student in Detroit and Charleston, W. Va., who left America, via Canada, early in January this year, with 700 other Russians.

Rimar says he went to Russia, to satisfy his curiosity and for fun—but that he didn't have any pleasure at all, and that his curiosity is thoroughly satisfied. He was arrested five times and went without a square meal for twelve weeks. He is hurrying back home.

Webster's Place in History.

While acting as the organ of the government in foreign affairs Webster showed that his powers as a diplomatist were scarcely inferior to his legal and oratorical endowments, but it is as secretary of state that he is best thought of now. His country proudly thinks of him as one whose brain and voice did more to inspire Americanism than any other man between Washington and Lincoln; as the greatest Federalist since Hamilton; as the finest exponent of the Constitution since Marshall.

TEX RICKARD PRESENTS DEMPSEY- CARPENTIER CONTEST

These Pictures Can Be Shown Every Man, Woman and Child, with perfect safety, and with this idea in mind we have arranged this Big, Double Program at such Small Prices.

The Dempsey-Carpentier attraction is not merely a "fight film." It is, in every sense of the word, a tremendous human drama, a drama of real, pulsating twentieth century life, with the broadest kind of appeal to every class and condition of humanity.

That this is so was demonstrated conclusively by the complex nature of the vast and singular orderly crowd that eagerly paid from $5.00 to $50.00 to play a small part in what must be ranked as one of the very greatest motion pictures ever filmed.

30,000 Women Present. And the ladies—God bless them—they were there in force. About thirty thousand, or one-third of the crowd, were represented by the fair sex, including Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, Mrs. Vincent Astor and many other notable society leaders.

EDITORIAL MENTION.

The assertion of the Sunday Times of London that the world is on the verge of a financial panic and that only the United States can help out may inspire many thoughtful Americans to ask when this appeal of the world to our nation is to stop. Not only did the United States give freely of blood and treasure directly in the war, but it loaned vast sums to the other allies, pouring in a flood of finance at a time when it was needed. So far as our own debts, along with loss of life and the continued expense connected with the work of rehabilitation, we are asking no other nation to assume them. But there is doubt whether the people of America would be willing to forgive all the debt of European countries, which is the real meaning of the euphemistic term we should "stabilize credit."

Along this line, it may be stated that the most sensible and practical step toward putting all nations back financially on their feet is that which our country proposes in the limitation of armaments. The hundreds of millions which are being spent yearly in the building of ships, and the other millions which go into the manning of them and their proper navigation would, if saved, pay a substantial portion of the debt of every country, including our own. And if this limitation should go further, being followed by curtailment of land forces, the saving would be even greater.

The claim has lately been made that some American school histories in the past five years, have been unjustified to such an extent as to rival those of our friends, the Britons, when discussing the Revolution and War of 1812. In the pages of these, revised or new school histories, for example, it is claimed that "victories like those of Concord, Bunker's Hill, and the Battle of New Orleans are belittled, that patriots like Nathan Hale, Paul Revere, Anthony Wayne and Molly Pitcher are overlooked, and that such slogans as "We have met the enemy and they are ours," "Don't give up the ship" and "I've not yet begun to fight" are ignored or discredited. French aid is depicted as dishonouring, the generous spirit of England extolled and children assured that "it is difficult to understand how ignorant and superstitious were the early colonists in America." If these things are true, it is time to revise a little backward. Our present generous impulses toward Great Britain should not carry us quite so far. And as for ignorance and superstition, what else was there in the world, all Europe included, two hundred years ago?

There is no doubt that with the second week the limitation of armaments enters upon its duties with every prospect of success. The first day of the meeting the Hughes speech with its openly announced and prodigious naval program swept the delegates and the countries off their feet. There was danger, however, that there would be reaction, that there would be a reaction, that the several nations would evince a personal, selfish interest, and that there would arise questions and quibbles and an undercurrent of pessimism which might wreck the proceeding. No such reaction has followed. There has been enthusiasm now in the conference as there was on November 12, and from the peoples of the world there has come response in terms bare of equivocation, and enthusiastic for a condition which shall make war impossible by removing the machinery of it. The conference, it is believed, has passed its critical era. The only country from which objection could be expected is Japan, and there is enough power in the other nations to compel her acquiescence.

Investigation of the problem of under-nourishment in certain sections of Chicago recently brought to light what will generally be a surprising fact when learned—that instances of under-nourishment were more numerous—there was greater percentage of them, among pupils of the public schools coming from the well-to-do than among those of the poorer classes. In this case there is the stockyard districts. What this appears to mean is that while the children of the rich have greater abundance and variety of food, the children of the poor, excepting of course those who are in the scale of abject poverty and real destitution, are better nourished than the children of the rich. In other words, the thing which the growing child needs is simple diet, adapted to his needs, not a great variety. There are a few basic sustenance of life. They are not in the main expensive, and they build up man's body to the system of the child.

Vilna Still a Bone of Contention.
It was thought by the optimistic that in deciding to erect the Lithuanian city of Vilna into an autonomous entity the League of Nations had eliminated a dangerous source of international friction, but the doubts expressed by the more skeptical as to the effectiveness of this compromise have since been justified by the course of events, and in the light of the latest news it is apparent that nothing of definitive importance has actually been accomplished. — [Philadelphia Inquirer.]

COMMENTS OF THE PRESS

A Record in Anniversaries.

There used to be a sickly joke going the rounds of the musical performances in which one black-face asks another "Why do married men live longer than single ones?" and the answer is "They don't; it only seems longer." The statement, however, is not borne out by the history of Mr. and Mrs. James Bell of Green Bay, Wis., who the other day celebrated the 85th anniversary of their marriage. So far as is recalled, that is the record. The husband is 101 and the wife 102 years of age, and presumably that is another record, and there is still a third which is worth mentioning. On his 100th birthday, Mrs. Bell rose at 1:30 a. m. and milked seven cows before breakfast. That shows that she was a helpmeet and is entitled to the long and happy married life she has enjoyed. Both are in good health and Mr. Bell walks to the post office every morning to get his newspaper. They are getting a great deal of publicity just now and are entitled to it.

France and America.

At the Foch luncheon last week General Tasker H. Bliss, with soldierly directness said that he trusted, if France was again attacked, that American forces would be found fighting over the old battlefields.

Spoken not only as a soldier but as a statesman. If there is to be peace in this world it must be thoroughly understood that if another attack on France is made it will meet the same answer that came in 1918. In 1914, if Germany had known whom and what she would be called on to meet, even her crazy Kaiser would have shown sanity. — [New York Tribune.]

A Lost Hinton.

M. Ireland says that during the conference the French will listen rather than talk. This may well be. The old idea of a Frenchman as a voluble, extensible, voluble person pouring out words at the rate of a thousand a second has been pretty well exploded. — [Chicago Daily News.]

The Conquest of Everest.

The reconnaissance of Mount Everest has been halted, and an attempt to make it in 1922 to climb the highest mountain in the world. On Monday night Sir Francis Younghusband, who was British commissioner to Tibet in 1902-4, told the Royal Geographical society, of which he is president, that the expedition sent to the Himalayas early in the year to study the approaches to the mountain and to map the country had found a northeastern spur, 6,000 feet below the summit, which could be used as a base for the ascent of the mountain. — [New York Times.]

China's Greatest Weakness.

Sooner or later the Washington conference will come to deal with the intricate problem of China. The American attitude is fairly well understood. We want to protect our interests in China and at the same time to protect China from further exploitation. The greatest stumbling block to accomplishing this will be found in the troublesome fact that China is not a united and cannot on that account be considered as a single nation. At the same time we have refused to recognize the duality of the Chinese government. — [Brooklyn Eagle.]

Bluffed by Snow.

The coincidence between the first real snow of the season and the manner in which the precipitation drove to safety mail-carrying airplanes between New York and the middle west, is advice that the commercial dependability of the air machine is not equal to the cold and meteorological conditions marked by turbulence. — [Pittsburgh Dispatch.]

NO TURKEY SHORTAGE

Commissioner Parks Points Out Large Number in Storage.

Albany, Nov. 21.—There is not apparent shortage of Thanksgiving day turkeys, according to Commissioner Berne A. Parks of the New York State Department of Farms and Markets. Commissioner Parks today called attention to a report issued by his department on November 2, showing that the quantity of turkeys held in licensed cold storage warehouses in the state on November 12 was greatly in excess of the holdings on the corresponding date in previous years. According to this report, the supply of turkeys in cold storage on November 12, this year, amounted to 1,045,541 pounds, as compared with 318,110 pounds on the same date last year and 466,127 on November 1, 1919.

Commissioner Parks points out, however, that the report for this year is not strictly comparable with that for previous years because of changes in the cold storage law which have increased the number of licensed warehouses required to make report. Analysis of the individual warehouse reports shows that in warehouses which did not report last year there were on November 12, 1921, a total of 31,355 pounds of turkeys being held. This leaves a net amount of 999,256 pounds stored in warehouses which a year ago reported a total of 318,110 pounds of turkey in storage. Holdings in this year, therefore, are nearly three times as large as one year ago in the warehouses for which proper comparisons can be made.

WAS A NATIVE OF OTEGO

Norman B. Willey, former Governor of Idaho, Dies Friendless and Alone in Poor House in Auburn, Kansas.

Few, perhaps, now residing in the town of Otego remember Norman B. Willey, who, a descendant of the famous Green Mountain Boys of the American Revolution, but it was in that township in the early forties of the nineteenth century that he was born there. Few still, perhaps, have kept track of the last 80 years ago, whose career, marked with many vicissitudes of adversity and failure, died a few days ago at the county poor farm in Auburn, Kansas, yet it was his destiny to have amassed a great fortune, to have been a governor of the state of Idaho, to have been a friend, a family and finally to have died poverty-stricken, helpless and alone. A recent "special" in the New York Evening Post tells the story of his life as follows:

He, amidst the unadorned soil of a newly made grave at Auburn, Kansas, he the cousin of Hon. Norman B. Willey, former governor of Idaho and a descendant of one of the famous Green Mountain Boys of the Revolution, who died only a few days ago at the Shawnee county poor farm, lonely, helpless, friendless and afflicted.

A few short years ago Kansas gave to her sister state, Idaho, William B. Borah, a fine county school teacher. And Idaho gave him a United States senator. A few years later Idaho gave to Kansas a former governor and a son of Revolutionary wars—and Kansas gave him a pauper's grave.

Born in New York.

"Norman B. Willey was born in or near Otego, N. Y., in the early forties of the nineteenth century. His family at that time were poor. He lived at Guilford, offered to send young Willey through Harvard if the latter would prepare himself for entrance. But the old gold fever of '49 was still in the air and the young man's feet rebelled for the West. He left school and went to California to look for gold. His early life in California is unknown, but he prospered, moved back into Idaho and built up a fortune. Then he entered politics and was elected lieutenant governor of his state in 1892. The governor resigned and Willey took the place of his friend and admirer of Senator Borah.

The Gold Fever.

"After his term as governor expired the gold mining fever again caught him and he went back to California. But this time he was gone for good. "Gradually his fortune dwindled until he had nothing left except a half interest in a claim in the California mountains. He and a man from Philadelphia worked their claim, living together in a little hut in the mountains, until about five years ago. The Philadelphia partner died, leaving Willey to struggle on, but old age had overtaken him. He was deaf, his eyesight was failing, and he could hardly get about.

The Poorhouse.

"Finally he gave up the struggle and came to Kansas to the home of his sister, Mrs. W. R. Black, who lived on a farm near Auburn, 15 miles from Topeka. He stayed there for more than three years, but last spring his sister died. "His last tie was gone. There was nothing for him to do but to go to the poorhouse. There he died a few days ago, and even the obituary columns of the local papers did not carry the announcement of the death. "The son of a newspaper reporter at Topeka did not find even a 'line' in his death record, and it remained for Lillian Hughes, a young student in the department of Journalism at Washburn college to 'scop the world with a death notice such as a former governor and descendant of a Green Mountain patriot deserves—even though death came to him in an almshouse.

DORAN-MONTGOMERY AGAIN.

Youth Who Figured in Oneonta Escapade Gets Freedom in Albany.

The Oneonta police have heard little of late from James J. Doran, the youth who was arrested here nearly two years ago for theft of an overcoat from a D. & H. train and for appropriating a traveling bag of a guest at a local hotel. Last night's Albany Journal states, however, that Doran was arraigned in Otisco county court yesterday on a charge of grand larceny, second degree, in stealing a watch from a locker in the West Albany Railroad Y. M. C. A. In December, 1919 Judge John L. Grandle at Hudson decided to suspend sentence as Doran had just been sentenced to prison after conviction for grand larceny in Birmingham.

It was after committing the Birmingham theft that Doran came to Oneonta with Montgomery. The local police turned him over to Birmingham and he has never been heard from since. Larceny charges, which he spent a couple of days in the city and the p. l. Montgomery, escaped from the jail here and it was several weeks before he was arrested by an Albany detective as he stepped off a train at that city. He is now serving a term in the Auburn reformatory.

CLEAN FILMS SAYS HATHAWAY

There Is a Nation-Wide Movement for Safe and Sound Picture Plays, and Oneonta Is Not Behind in This Regard.

Mr. O. S. Hathaway, owner of a chain of theatres through New York state, of which Oneonta is included, was in the city recently conferring with McCre & Borst relative to the new building now under construction. When met by a Star reporter he was approached on the subject of "clean, cleaner and better pictures." The time has come, Mr. Hathaway stated, when the picture producing concerns must clean house, or suffer the consequences. And these consequences will be the reputation of the picture management business. But even so, all the blame cannot be attached to the producers. If they find that a sex play draws, they make another believing the public want that class of pictures, and that the theatre managers also want it, being deluded by the fact that it fills the desires of their patrons. But such ideas are all wrong. I for one have done, and will do all in my power to remedy such conditions. Should the time ever come when I cannot secure productions, which anyone can see without a semblance of embarrassment, I will close my theatres or dispose of them. Mr. Hathaway is particularly adamant on this question and it is fortunate for the residents of Oneonta and vicinity that such is the case. Mr. Hathaway also explains some of the difficulties a manager encounters in securing proper picture plays and we learned that there are some things that they must produce and not knowingly those that will never be shown in any of the Hathaway theatres. In fact, Mr. Hathaway never even goes to the trouble of looking over any of their offerings, feeling certain that some element of the undesirable will be contained in them.

From the present situation, ever kept upon us I can't understand, he remarked, and his tone proved this resentment of the fact. "I don't want to sit through a suggestive picture play, and I am certain none of our patrons do. I resent them feeling that my mentality has been lowered by the fact that I have seen a suggestive picture. I know that I am not alone in this feeling. The American nation as a whole is clean and this very fact that has made us what we are—brought us to the high mental and physical development we've reached. So I know that I am only from a patriotic sense and not knowingly show pictures which might lead to put anyone from the heights to which we, as a nation, have climbed.

Why should a picture have to contain a sex theme any more than a war theme? Surely there are enough of clean, healthy, mental stories to be had. Take the magazines and books of today. The good plots contained in one month's output would be ample for five years' film production. As an example, take the Paramount pictures we are showing at the theatre. There isn't a trace of anything but the best of clean stories, or take The Old Nest, a pure, clean wholesome story. They are the kind of pictures the public want and the kind of Hathaway theatres are going to offer, or shut up shop.

Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Sedan $660
F. O. B. Detroit
With Starter and demountable rims

Genuine Common Sense

Many Ford owners can afford to own and operate any car they may choose, but they prefer a Ford "because it is a Ford."

For "because it is a Ford" means dependability, ease of operation, efficiency—and it means sure, quick transportation.

And "because it is a Ford" means good taste, pride of ownership and genuine Common Sense.

The Ford Sedan, a closed car of distinction, beauty and power, is the ideal all year

Theatre Musicians Versatile.

Patrons of the Oneonta theatre last evening expressed themselves to Manager Moore as being very pleased with the versatility of the theatre orchestra under the leadership of Albert Smaldone. The picture, "Little Italy," featuring Alice Brady, contained several scenes of Italian dancing, to which Leader Smaldone adapted his music, making use of mandolins, guitars, and other instruments used in the picture. The novelty was not only enjoyed by the audience, but it demonstrated the ability of every member of the orchestra to play several instruments.

Country Club Affairs.

At a meeting of the directors of the Oneonta Country club, held last evening, Daniel E. Smith and Walter E. Morey were elected recent members and Miss Marion Shepard and Miss Irene Posthill associate members.

RED CROSS ROLL CALL

Lincoln L. Kellogg Appointed to Direct Membership Campaign of Oneonta Chapter—House to House Canvass Planned—Persons Designating Red Cross in Community Chest Contributions Not to be Solicited.

Plans for the annual Red Cross Roll call were discussed at a meeting of the executive committee of the Oneonta chapter held Saturday evening and Lincoln L. Kellogg of this city was chosen to take active charge of the campaign. Mr. Kellogg will direct the campaign in the territory covered by the local chapter, appointing a representative from each branch to attend to the details of securing the large increase in membership which is hoped will result from the roll call. Miss Mary Sisson will have charge of the work in the city. The branch representatives will be named in the near future.

Many subscribed to the Red Cross through the medium of the Community Chest and such people will not be solicited this year. An endeavor will be made to reach everyone else, however, as the chapter desires to hold its present members and to add to the number so that it will not be obliged, through lack of funds, to curtail its plans for the future.

The following places have been designated where memberships may be renewed or new ones taken out: Oneonta Department store, Carr clothing company, Goldsworthy's Book store, Community House, Miss Beulah Holdridge, executive secretary of the Home Service division, will be in charge of the membership station at the Community House. It is also planned to make a house to house canvass. The drive is now in progress and will continue until Nov. 30.

DEAN A. R. MANN COMING

Head of State College of Agriculture to Address Annual Meeting County Farm Bureau

The Farm Bureau association will hold its 6th annual meeting on December 6th in the Strand theatre in Oneonta. The program this year will be of unusual interest since the matter of revision of the constitution which would broaden the scope of the organization, is to be an important consideration. This together with the election of officers and the reports of officers and committees will make up the morning program. This business session will begin promptly at 10:30 a. m. should be largely attended.

Dean A. R. Mann of the College of Agriculture has been secured for the afternoon as the principal speaker. He has been directing the agricultural education of the state for a number of years and in so doing has kept in close touch with the agriculture of the state. He is a forceful speaker and should be heard by a large number of farmers from all parts of the county.

The central office of Farm Bureaus at Ithaca will be represented by Chas. A. Taylor, former county agent of Herkimer county and known to many people in Oneonta. Prof. Martha Van Rensselaer will speak for the Home Bureau.

The afternoon session is to be a joint one with the Home Bureau in order that the members of the organizations may avail themselves of the opportunity to hear all the speakers. The Home Bureau's business session will be held in Municipal hall during the forenoon.

Playlet at High School.

The High School Dramatic club will present in the High school auditorium this evening Zone Gale's "The Neighbors," the playlet, the production of which by the same cast featured the opening session of the Daitymen's convention last week. A small admittance fee will be charged to cover the royalty and other expenses. The students gave an excellent performance last week of the sprightly comedy and a treat is in store for all who intend to witness the playlet this evening.

AUTO CRASH ON SOUTH SIDE

S. F. Germond Escapes Injury When His Maxwell Is Hit by Cadillac Roadster Late Sunday Night.

Two motor cars were badly damaged in a collision on the South Side highway late Sunday night but fortunately for those concerned, no one was injured.

S. F. Germond of South Side, a D. & H. night car inspector, was on his way to work about 10:30 o'clock, driving his Maxwell touring car. When in front of the Edward Seymour place, he was run into by a Cadillac roadster coming from the city. Mr. Germond states that the Cadillac was going about 20 miles and held to the middle of the road. He endeavored to avoid being hit, but was unsuccessful and the left forward wheels of the two cars came together. Mr. Germond's car, which had been traveling about 20 miles an hour, was hurled to the left across the road but did not overturn. The Cadillac also swerved to the left and ran up on the bank along the road, keeping right side up. There were two girls with the young man driving the Cadillac, while Mr. Germond was alone. No one involved in the accident was hurt, although Mr. Germond was badly shaken up.

The frame, steering gear and front axle of the Maxwell were badly bent and the two left wheels were practically demolished. As for the Cadillac, it suffered a broken wheel and a bent axle. Both cars were still alongside the road yesterday but will be taken to garages for repairs today. Mr. Germond did not learn the name of the owners of the Cadillac unit.

When the McMullen brothers of Albany avenue notified him that the car was their property.

TO FORM SIXTH WARD CLUB

Citizens Meet Last Evening to Perfect Organization—Addresses Given by Judge Huntington, Dr. Dunn and Mayor-Elect Miller.

Active citizens of the sixth ward gathered at the River Street school building last evening to discuss intentions in the ward and to listen to interesting addresses by Judge Frank C. Huntington, Superintendent of Schools Dr. George J. Dunn and Mayor-Elect C. J. Miller. Judge Huntington and Dr. Dunn spoke of the need for such an organization as it was the purpose of the group to form in the ward. Mr. Miller urged the necessity of such an organization as an aid to the city administration, expressed a desire that there might be such a club in every ward and commended those present for taking the initiative in the matter. The addresses were very interesting and received the close attention of all.

Following the addresses, Rev. Norman K. Bard, who was chairman of the meeting, asked those present if they were desirous to form a civic club in the ward. It was voted to perfect such an organization and committees on by-laws and rules and on nominations were appointed. The next meeting will be held December 6, probably at the school building.

Flowers for Thanksgiving

As a gift to your Hostess or, if you will entertain, as a compliment to your guests

If you are to be a guest, your hostess will appreciate best a gift of flowers, or a seasonable plant, as a symbol of your thoughtfulness. If you are to entertain, your guests will notice the compliment if the table is nicely decorated and full flowers are about the home.

FIGHT PICTURES PLEASE

The showing of the authentic motion pictures of the Dempsey-Carpenter battle for the heavyweight championship of the world attracted large crowds at every performance at the Strand yesterday and everyone seemed well pleased with the pictures, which show every detail of the historic struggle from the time the men entered the ring until the final blow in the fourth round. In addition, the films show interesting details of the training for the bout and of the record crowd of 99,000 which packed the Jersey City arena on July 2 last.

The pictures are remarkably clear and distinct, showing every move of the boxers and setting many questions in regard to the blows struck and the comparative merits of the contestants. In addition to the fight picture, "Scandal," featuring Constance Talmadge, was shown. The pictures will be shown again today and tomorrow and on Thursday morning a special matinee will be given for those unable to attend the regular performances.

SCHOOL FIRE ECHOES.

Insurance Adjusters Expected Here Today to Appraise Loss.

Little additional information relative to the Chestnut street school fire was brought to light yesterday. It is quite generally accepted that there was an explosion of gas, with wood stored in the furnace room to dry ignited by the explosion or live coals thrown out into the room.

The change of janitors at the building had no bearing upon the fire. James Hannan, who had been engaged at the building since Sept. 1, had been promoted to a position at the High school building at an increased salary, and C. D. Loucks had succeeded him. Mr. Hannan had remained with Mr. Loucks during the first half of the week to instruct him in the care of the furnace and the building.

It is expected that the adjusters will be in the city today, to adjust the loss and it is hoped that a speedy agreement can be reached. When this is accomplished, it is believed that work restoring the building will be commenced.

Attending Teachers' Conference.

Among the residents of this section who are in Buffalo for the first three days of this week in attendance at the annual convention of New York State Teachers' association are Dr. D. I. Dunbar, of the State Normal, Miss Thompson of the High school faculty, Supt. J. E. Frederick of this commissioner's district, Supt. Arthur T. Hamilton of Harpersfield, Supt. O. J. Lee of Jefferson and Supt. Burroughs Blackledge of Arona. During the fire in the Chestnut street school, it is not expected that Dr. G. J. Dunn of the city schools will be able to attend.

Undergoes Operation for Appendicitis

Miss Nina Barnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Barnes, 27 East street, was operated on yesterday morning at the Fox Memorial hospital for relief of appendicitis. Dr. Cutler being the surgeon in charge, assisted by Dr. Augustin. Miss Barnes has every chance for a speedy and good recovery.

How long has it been on talking through the Oneonta Star, in veiling of the opportunity to give to make good? I've safely helped so many inexperienced men, women and kids that I'm wondering if a lot of others won't see hundreds who are no smarter, nor having any better advantages, but who are getting ahead of them to beat the band, and thus make them wake up to my life and let live them. READING OF REPORTS

List of Grand Jurors and Report of Committee on Footing Assessment Rolls Major Part of Business of Supervisors Yesterday.

Cooperstown, Nov. 21.—At the afternoon's meeting of the Board of Supervisors the list of grand jurors for the coming year and the report of the committee on footing assessment rolls were taken up and formed the major part of the day's business. In addition the following petitions were presented for levy and assessment:

Onenias—Against the taxable property of lighting districts of the town of Onenias, $1,522.51. Requested for: Street lighting East End district, $254.28. Street lighting West Onenias district, $45. Street lighting Onenias Plains district, $1,223.13. Total—$1,522.51.

Richfield—$75 for maintenance of Monument park in the village of Richfield Springs.

Richfield—$500 for reimbursing the general fund.

Other petitions were presented from the towns of Canadilla, Plainfield and Laurens.

A letter of thanks from Hon. A. L. Kellogg for the prompt action taken upon his request for funds to supply efficiency in the amount allotted to him for defraying expenses of the supreme court chambers at Onenias was read by the clerk.

The report of Coroner Sloan of Worcester gave the following cases he was called upon to attend:

D. L. Bestwick—Suffocation from smoke.

Samuel Woodcock—Burned.

Gilbert Smith—Killed by cars.

Melvin Mulbach—Accidental drowning.

P. L. Snyder—Apoplexy.

Preliminary to the opening of the regular meeting, the board met as a board of county assessors with Mr. Lord as chairman and Mr. H. H. Hines as clerk. They reported that the total number of votes cast this year in Onenias county was 17,524 as against 19,295 in 1920 and 16,987 in 1919. Notable among the features of this year's canvass was the increase shown in the Socialist vote and the heavy vote cast against the proposed amendment to the state constitution. As their report has not yet been completed, the committee was deferred until November 23, when a complete report will be given. With the list of grand jurors out of the way and the report on footing assessment rolls completed, the work of the board has taken a stable stride forward in its two years' work. The tabulated report of the committee on footing assessment rolls will appear in these columns tomorrow.

DEATH OF CHARLES GARDNER

Native of Gilbertsville and Respected Onenias Expatriate Monday—Funeral Services Tomorrow.

Charles Gardner, for thirty-four years a well-known and greatly respected resident of Onenias, died Monday morning at the Binghamton State hospital, of which since early July he had been a patient. Not long ago he was at his family in this city, and his older brother, S. E. Gardner, left on the morning train for Binghamton and accompanied the body home last evening. The funeral services will be held at St. James' Protestant Episcopal church at two o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The rector, Rev. Mr. Deane, will officiate, and burial will be in the family plot at Glenwood. The service at the cemetery will be conducted by the Masonic lodge of Onenias. Friends wishing to pay their respects prior to the service can do so at his late home between the hours of noon and 1 p. m.

Mr. Gardner was born in Gilbertsville, December 3, 1866, and was a son of Washington and Eveline (Brown) Gardner. His early life was spent in that village, but he came on attaining his majority to Onenias, where he engaged in business as a member of the laundry firm of Ceperly & Gardner. He retired from this business about 16 years ago and since that time had been employed as a commercial traveler, in which vocation he had been very successful. He was for some time with the Elmore Milling company of this city, later with Park & Telford of Boston and more recently to the time of his illness with the Clyde Renco company. His home in Onenias had for the last twenty-six years been at 353 Main street.

The surviving members of his immediate family are his wife, formerly Miss Mary R. Farrell, of Albany, to whom he was married in 1885; his daughter, Mrs. John Steidle; two grandsons, Charles and John Steidle, and two brothers, Squire E. Gardner and Lynn L. Gardner, all of Onenias. He was a member of St. James' church and for many years a vestryman of the Onenias Masonic lodge, of which he was a Past Master; of the Onenias chapter and of the Onenias council of United Commercial Travelers.

Mr. Gardner was a most worthy and estimable man, active in business and particularly successful as a commercial traveler, making friends wherever he went. He was a loving husband and father, a consistent member of the church of his choice, an enterprising citizen, a good neighbor and a faithful friend. The sympathy of many friends in Onenias and wherever he was known will be extended to the family in the loss of one who in the fullness of his powers was last summer so suddenly stricken.

Wants His Money Back

"I can thank Mr. O'Brien, a neighbor, for my recovery from severe colic attacks and stomach trouble that nearly forced me to cross the river Jordan. I spent thousands of dollars in the past six years for doctors and medicine and would have died but for my neighbors advice to use Dr. Williams' Wonderful Kidney. I wish I had the money back I spent for other medicine. It is a simple, harmless preparation that restores the exhausted nature from the intestinal tract and allows the individual who suffers practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis, to lose weight or money refunded. IS ANCIENT LAND

Rhodesia at One Time Home of Large Population.

Even Today, Mantle of Mystery Hanging Over the Country Has Not Been Completely Lifted.

We can now turn to the really romantic side of the Rhodesian mineral deposits. One of the favorite pilgrimages of the tourist is to the Zimababwe ruins, located about 17 miles from Victoria in southern Rhodesia. They are the remains of an ancient city and must at various times have been the home of large populations. There seems little doubt that Zimababwe was the work of a prehistoric and long-forgotten people.

Over it hangs a mantle of mystery which the fictionist has employed to fuel and at times thrilling advantage. Isaac F. Marcossan writes in the Saturday Evening Post. In this vicinity were the King Solomon mines that Rider Haggard wrote about in what is perhaps his most popular book. Here come Allan Quatermain in pursuit of love and treasure. The big hill at Zimababwe provided the residence of She, the lovely and disappearing lady who had to be obeyed. The ruins in the valley are supposed to be those of the Dead City in the same romance. The interesting feature of all this is that "She" and "King Solomon's Mines" were written in the early '80s, when comparatively nothing was known of the country. Yet Rider Haggard, with that instinct which sometimes guides the romancer, wrote fairly accurate descriptions of the country long before he had ever heard of its actual existence. Thus imagination preceded reality.

The imaginative miracles disclosed in the Haggard books are surpassed by the actual wonder represented by Victoria falls. Everybody has heard of this stupendous spectacle in Rhodesia, but few people see it, because it is so far away. I beheld it on my way from Bulawayo to the Kongo. Like the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, it baffles description.

The first white man to visit the cataract was Dr. Livingstone, who named it in honor of his queen. This was in 1855. For untold years the natives of the region had trembled at its fury. They called it Mosi-oa-tunga, which means "smoke that sounds." When you see the falls you can readily understand why they got this name. This mist is visible ten miles away, and the terrific roar of the falling waters can be heard even farther.

The fact that the casual traveler can see Victoria falls from the train is due entirely to the foresight and the imagination of Cecil Rhodes. He knew the publicity value that the cataract would have for Rhodesia, and he combined the utilitarian with his love of the romantic. In planning the Rhodesian railroad, therefore, he insisted that the bridge across the gorge of the Zambesi, into which the mighty waters flow after their fall, must be sufficiently near to enable the spray to wet the railway carriages.

The experts said it was impossible, but Rhodes had his way, just as Harri-man's will prevailed over that of trained engineers in the construction of the bridge across Great Salt lake.

Scent of Vanilla.
The umburana of Brazil is a soft yellow wood so delightfully scented with vanilla that one is tempted to eat it, says the American Forestry Magazine.

How It Started

HOME HEATING PLANTS.

THE first attempt to heat houses by hot air was probably made by Benjamin Franklin. The first hot-air furnace was built at Worcester, Mass., in 1835. Heating by hot water is of great antiquity, the Romans having used this method in their great baths. In 1777 M. Bounemain proposed this method for heating the bathhouse in the Jardin des Plantes, Paris. The first idea of heating by steam was introduced in England in the Eighteenth century by William Cook of Manchester.

"Every politician has," replied Senator Sorghum, "for the simple reason that the majority has the most votes."

NAMES GOLF 'CORRESPONDENT'

Divorce Complaint in New Jersey Charges Game Took Husband's Affection.

Newark, N. J.—The ancient and honorable game of golf is "correspondent" in a divorce suit filed by Mrs. Rachel B. Hayward of Montclair against Sterling P. Hayward.

In affidavits filed with Vice-Chancellor Fleider Mrs. Hayward declared the game took so much of her husband's leisure she scarcely ever saw him; that her lack of interest in golf caused him to be cruel to her and that he spent money in pursuit of his hobby that he should have spent maintaining her and their two children.

Mr. Hayward's answer denies golf is responsible for their marital difficulties, which he attributes to difficulties with Mrs. Hayward's relatives and to her discovery that he was not so wealthy as she had believed.

He Was Willing.

Brown himself isn't going any too good. There are days when he hits the bumps harder than he can comfortably stand—and he shows it.

There's another road that Brown could travel safely—smooth, comfortable, pleasant, and absolutely safe.

And Brown came to you for advice. And you'd look at the facts and you'd say: "Why, Brown, there's nothing to this thing. It doesn't take any argument to decide this. Turn to the right and take the smooth, safe road, and Do It Now."

Suppose the road Brown is on is the coffee or tea road. Hundreds have had trouble on that road. Doctors have sounded the warning for the public, and raised the "no-traffic" sign for their patients—time and time again. The drugs, caffeine in coffee and then in tea, keep whipping the nerves—tending to interfere with sleep, upset digestion, produce high blood pressure, and to wear down health and efficiency by the disturbance of rest and nervous balance. Some folks go a long way on the road; some folks don't seem to notice the jolts—for a while, anyway.

But what would you say to Brown about choosing the safe road instead of the risky one?

And suppose Brown were you?

Postum users travel the sunrise road—away from the coffee and tea jolts and risks.

Postum is free from the possibility of harm for any one, and full of comfort and satisfaction for every one. Even the little children can share in the delights of a hot, mealtime cup of Postum.

No fears, either that Postum will rob the night of sleep as coffee so often does. Postum is a friendly drink for any one any time. And it's good! When you've tried Postum a few days you'll wonder why you ever thought of sacrifice in leaving off coffee or tea. Rich and flavory and satisfying, Postum suits the taste so that there's no longer any thought that you should drink it; only the thought that you want to drink it.

Postum opened the better road and the safe road for coffee and tea drinkers more than a quarter of a century ago, and a steadily increasing multitude is traveling that road—up and on to better enjoyment, better efficiency, better accomplishment.

You can buy Postum wherever good food and drink are sold and served. You can begin, now, this turn to the right road which you would so quickly recommend for Brown—by ordering Postum from your family grocer or telling your waiter at the restaurant to serve you Postum instead of coffee or tea.

Make Postum according to directions and enjoy its delicious flavor; find the change in "feeling" after a week's use of Postum. Let the family join you in the trip up the sunrise way.

You'd know what to say to Brown—say it to yourself.

ARE THEY?

The office was alive with noises. A messenger whistled, typewriters clicked, an adding machine buzzed, a multigraph thumped. It would seem to a mere outsider that amid all this speed and activity there would be no room for anyone so distracting as Dame Gossip or no time to listen to her stories in case she could force her way in.

Yet if this outsider had supernatural ears, he might have heard one stenographer buzzing to another. "And just before he has to leave for South America! What a shame!" Or, if his powers of observation had been acute, he might have noticed that the messenger had stopped whistling long enough to listen to a new development in the story, such as "He has been working for six months for his appointment so that they could go to South America for their honeymoon." If a mild reader, he might perhaps have noted a pang of envy flashing through the mind of a plain-looking stenographer in an obscure corner of the room. Perhaps she was thinking, "Any girl with a bunch of curls and baby-vampire eyes can treat a man as she pleases."

His curiosity as to the victims of these little smatches of gossip might have induced the outsider to go to the root of the trouble. If so, his investigations would eventually have led him to a dilapidated old boarding house, the home of one Genevieve West.

A small, blue-eyed girl sat in front of a mirror deftly pinning some curls back in shining waves over a large protruding ear. Having accomplished this to her private satisfaction she turned her head, carefully avoiding a prominent flaw in the mirror, and proceeded to enter up the other ear, equally large and equally protruding. Three floors below in the boarding house parlor sat Lyman McCullough, a clean-cut young Scotchman, characterized mainly by a rather square jaw, but with a pleasing face for all that. His Scotch jaw for once was serving him well for, in a position where most men would have given up in despair, he was able to hold on with a stubborn persistence which would excite envy from the most tenacious bulldogs.

Curiosity well aroused now, the outsider would probably have followed the couple as they strolled through the Boston common, and he might even have eavesdropped a little to their conversation as they sat on a bench beneath the sheltering shade of a large tree.

Lyman was saying, "Genevieve, if you love me as you say you do, you will marry me tomorrow and go to South America."

While Genevieve was persisting with much determination, "You know I love you, Lyman, but I can't marry you tomorrow. I can't."

Falteringly she added, "I'll wait for you."

Lyman exploded. "Wait for me! Why do you suppose I took this position? For the privilege of traveling alone?"

Calming down a little, he asked her patiently for the hundredth or perhaps the thousandth time, "Why, why can't you marry me tomorrow? We were planning to be married next month, anyhow."

And for the hundredth or perhaps the thousandth time, Genevieve answered, "I can't, Lyman, I just can't."

Lyman changed his tactics and resorted to coaxing. "Come, Genevieve, please tell me what is troubling my pretty curly-headed girl."

Genevieve winced. "I'm not."

"Not what?" asked Lyman.

"Not what you think I am," answered Genevieve.

Lyman looked puzzled and then laughed. "What are you then, sweetheart?"

Genevieve shook her head with a decided negative, but did not answer his question.

"How soon will you marry me if I give up the trip?"

Genevieve counted on her fingers. "A week from Thursday. Oh, Lyman, will you? Can you?"

But Lyman, too, was counting on his fingers. "Ah!" he detected. "I have a fine Thursday! Pay day! Money!"

But Genevieve refused. "I couldn't take your money. We aren't married."

"Very easy," remedied Lyman.

"We'll get married now and I'll give you the money."

When Genevieve refused, Lyman lost his patience and left her. "The outsider would probably have been losing his patience, too, by this time and he relieved to see Genevieve shedding tears, which is a sure sign that a woman is about to tell what is troubling her."

She called to Lyman and he turned to her roughly. "Look here, Genevieve, you're going to tell me this minute why you want that money."

Genevieve crumpled into a pathetic little heap beside him and gulped her explanation.

"It's for a permanent wave. I know you would divorce me if you saw my hair on co-enters."

Lyman's relieved laugh rang through the common, but if the outsider had been there he would probably have strolled away, saying disgustedly: "Aren't girls fools?"

Sugar Once Considered Medicine.

Sugar was at first sold by apothecaries, both as a medicine and as a thing to sweeten and make other medicines more palatable, for in those days a medicine which was not bitter and nauseous was not considered effective. The sugar habit grew on people, the production was stimulated and today the whole world uses it as food.

Rheumatism Relief--25c.

Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets). Are Helping Thousands Who Tried Exhaustive Things Without Result. It's Guaranteed.

There are three vital processes of human existence—the digestion of food, the extraction of nourishment from it and the elimination of waste. Poor digestion and assimilation means failure to derive full nourishment from food and that in turn often means impoverished blood, weakness, anemia, etc. Poor elimination means an accumulation of waste matter which poisons the body, lowers vitality, decreases the power of resistance to disease and leads to the development of many serious ills. Rheumatism, due to some interference with the process of elimination, failure to get rid of certain body poisons, cannot be expected to yield to any medicine that fails to correct the condition responsible for it. Could any reasonable person expect to rid himself of rheumatic pain as long as rheumatic poison is allowed to remain in the body?

Think of this. It explains the success of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) in so many cases where other medicines have failed. Thousands are using NR Tablets every day and getting relief. Why pay five or ten times as much for uncertain things? A box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets), containing enough to last twenty-five days, must help you, must give you prompt relief and satisfactory benefit or cost you nothing. Nature's Remedy is not only for the relief of rheumatism. It improves digestion, tones the liver, regulates kidney and bowel action, improves the blood and cleanses the system. You've tried the expensive medicines and doctors, now make the real test. You'll get results this time. Just try it. Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) is sold, guaranteed and recommended by your druggist.

Sealdsweet

Florida Grapefruit and Oranges

Now available to your dealer—he will secure them for you if you insist.

During the long summer and fall, fresh fruits generally have been scarce and in most places high-priced.

It is one of Nature's compensations that in this period Sealdsweet grapefruit and oranges were being perfected by the sunshine and the showers that in Florida are mingled with balmy breezes from the tropics.

From the groves of the co-operating growers who form the Florida Citrus Exchange, Sealdsweet grapefruit and oranges are coming to you, tree-ripened, sweet, full-flavored and filled with juice. While the crop is little if any greater than last year, there will be enough to give an ample supply.

For the Health and Strength of All Members of the Family

Just as, in the language of the prophet of old, "The leaves of the trees are for the healing of the nations," the fruits thereof were designed, in the great scheme of creation, for the maintenance of health and strength.

No other fruits are so rich in constituents helpful to health as grapefruit and oranges. They rank high in calories, the fuel units of food, and in vitamins, the elements of food essential to the preservation of life.

Sealdsweet grapefruit and oranges are the dependable kind, uniformly containing plenty of juice, in which are found the food and health values of citrus fruits. Sealdsweet means inner goodness—the grapefruit and oranges marketed under this trade-name are good to eat and fine for the system, whether bright, golden or russet in outer color. Ask for and if necessary demand Sealdsweet fruits and you will get the full worth of your money in eating quality and healthful juice.

Unbreakable Glass.
Ordinary glass is very sensitive to temperature changes of a sudden nature. A drop of water on a hot lamp chimney is very apt to see up strains that will result in instant fracture. A glass is now manufactured that is absolutely immune from sudden temperature changes, says the Popular Science Monthly. Two semi-metallic substances enter into its composition that have different points of expansion. A tube is made from each of the glasses. The tubes are then placed one within the other and fused together. A very rugged glass results.

THE LIFE OF GAS MANTLES

Illuminating Device Should Last 1,000 Burning Hours—May Be Destroyed in Few Moments

The following facts about gas mantles are taken from Gas Logic, the house organ of the United Gas Company in New York.

A good gas mantle should last from 500 to 1,000 or even 1,000 burning hours. Breakage, however, is not always due to poor mantle quality. Turning the gas off and on and the slight explosion that sometimes occurs when it is lighted is highly destructive of mantles. A mantle which, burning steadily, might last for several thousand hours may be destroyed in a few minutes by rough handling or in a few hours by unusual but unavoidable wear and tear.

"Initial candle power is that measured when the mantle is first lighted. It is extremely high in cheap and inferior mantles. But soon, often within a few minutes, the brilliancy of the light fades never to be regained. The intensity of this initial light is a snare into which the unwary and unwise frequently fall in purchasing cheap mantles."

"Sustained candle power is the measure of light given out by a mantle over a long period, and is of course the real test of a good mantle. The high-class mantle may not have an initial candle power equal to that of a cheaper substitute, but in the long test its superiority is demonstrated."

"Some of the gas companies are now selling mantles with a guarantee of at least 100 days' service."

Kaiser Little Changed by Wife's Death.
The death of former Empress Augusta Victoria has brought no radical change in former Emperor William's daily routine. He continues his wood sawing, reading, and inspection of the estate in Doorn, Holland. The former emperor receives fewer visitors and suffers spells of melancholy.

Facts About Famous Persons.

Somebody who writes for the Argonaut has collected a number of insignificant facts about significant persons. Oliver Wendell Holmes used to carry a horse chestnut in one pocket and a potato in another to ward off rheumatism. Edgar Allan Poe slept with his cat and was inordinately proud of his feet. Robert Browning shuffled his feet so constantly that he wore holes in the carpet. Sardou imagined he had a perpetual cold. Count Tolstoy was very rich, but he wore the cheapest clothes he could buy. Ernest Hemingway wore his finger nails abnormally long.

Not True Charity.

We believe it was Emerson who said you had to give affection with money in order to make it count. So much charity is pocket deep.
